Just pestered folks again. I was told that EPA can't presently opine about the cause of the spill. At this point, that's for BP to say.

We didn't. Just got the 'we'll follow up' line, but our chief of staff was also in the meeting. So I am hopefully it helped to push the envelope. Thanks again for all the pestering.

Great that you had a good meeting with BP.

Were you able to get satisfactory answer to any of the questions or requests you'd sent to me?

We've been looking to others for assistance (namely USCG and BP), and it's been slow going, unfortunately. I'd like to stop pestering folks if you have what you need. J

Additionally, our office met with BP today and they were very responsive to some additional questions and clarification we had regarding our letter and the spill. It sounds like they have been very cooperative. We are interested in working with EPA and BP to ensure spills like this don't happen again and we have all the appropriate measures in place for the future.

Also, I've been following up with folks on your BP questions, request for cleanup/investigation plans, etc. I keep asking, but nothing to share yet.
